penpee.com creates the next commercial opportunity for everyone that sees themselves as a writer and a story-teller. Penpee sees itself as the Netflix of this space, creating an opportunity where there existed none in its form before it. For the professionals to the amateur to the

The straight forward model give rewards to writers, from all over the world, for every qualified pages of their stories, blog posts and articles that are read. This reward is known as credits. It works by giving every new member welcome credits which is then charged as they read your story and split between the platform and the writers. The credits, when given to writers is then converted to cash which can be deposited into their bank accounts or PayPal, depending on membership type.

There is an extended social element to it: To connect with writers, invite friends to read your stories, see who viewed your profile and all sorts of different things.
